First and Last Sleighride.

In all probability Edward S. Carpenter was the first and last man to have a sleighride in this part of eastern Connecticut during the winter that closed Sunday night. His first ride was taken on the day last fall that the first sign of snow came and the last ride on St. Patrick's day, when it tried to snow a little bit. It wasn't very good sleighing on either the first or the last day of the season, but that hasn't anything to do with the matter. Mr. Carpenter rode in a sleigh on both days.

Thirty-Five Mile Hike in One Day.
How they finished or whether or not they did finish is not yet known, but on Monday morning Roy Keach, William Marland and Austin Brooks left Danielson to walk to Oakland Beach. It is a matter of about thirty-five miles between the two places and the strenuosity of their undertaking may easily be imagined by anyone who has tried to do such a distance in a day. The three young men have been friends during their course at the high school and long distance walking stunts have been indulged in by them before. Ordered Closed Sunday Afternoon b Prosecuting Attorney Bill.

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill visited and ordered the pool room of A. Pellerin in the Evans block closed A. Pellerin in the Evans block closest Sunday afternoon. The prosecuting attorney was accompanied by Officer Thomas Mariow. They found more than a dozen men in the place, some of them being in a back room at the time of the very much unexpected visit from the officials. This pool room has recently been the source of much Sunday annoyance to some of the residents of that part of the town and a complaint was entered against it. Whether there will be further action relative to the place is not known at this time.

Attorney Bill said Monday that action, relative to limiting the hours during which any place of business in Danielson may be kept open on Sunday is contemplated, the idea being to permit the stores to be open for a short time on Sunday mornings, at noon and at night.

A ROSY DREAM.

Newspaper Story About Grand Trunk Railway Passing Through Putnam.

A story recently printed in a Water-bury paper credits business men in this section and residents in sur-rounding towns as already hinted and manifesting activity towards the achievement ultimately of having the proposed extension of the Grand Trunk rallway pass through this city on its way to tide water at Providence. That sounds good and the giving to Putnam and this section of eastern Connecticut another railroad is appreciated but at present it is nerely a dream. Put-nam is a logical crossing point over the New Haven lines for the Grand Trunk extension between Palmer and Providence, but if, as the Waterbury paper claims, there is a movement in this city to bring such a desirable re-sult about, it is being kept mighty quiet, for many of the business men have not heard a word about it.

Friends Surprise Wr. G. H. Jennings on 60th Birthday With Gift of $200 in Gold-Vital Statistics for Febru-

Dr. George H. Jennings was very pleasantly surprised at his home on East Main street Monday evening, when friends in and about the borough literally stormed his castle and insisted on being allowed to assist in the fitting celebration of his 60th birthday. Dr. Jennings is a very busy man and is seldom able to spend an evening at home, but the stratagem of those in charge was successful and he was there. During the evening Dr. W. H. Gane, acting for those present and for the many who found it impossible to attend, made a short characteristic speech, expresing his pleasure in presenting the doctor in the only tangible way that could be thought of something to emphasize the general feeling of friendliness and good wishes. At this point Master Fred Clarke gave Dr. Jennings $200 in gold.

It was the first intention that $60 should be the limit, which would have served the purpose intended as well as much more, but little gifts with their accompanying letters of love could not be stopped, and only were when it was decided not to receive but $200.

Dr. Jennings was much pleased, and it was evident to all that his appreciation of the kindly feeling that prompted the whole affair was heartflet.
